

Celebrate With Music
Orlando Philharmonic Orchestra • Young People's Concerts
September - November 2008

Are you planning to celebrate an event? Then you will need decorations, party hats, balloons, plenty of good food and drink – and don't forget the MUSIC! Music is important for many celebrations, from family birthday dinners to the international Olympic games. The Orlando Philharmonic invites you to Celebrate With Music at the 2008 Young People's Concerts. Conductor Andrew Lane will lead the orchestra as we explore music that celebrates events in many different places, times and cultures. Rhythm will be an important element as students listen for music that moves in twos (duple) and threes (triple meter).

This celebration concert will introduce students to music composed for historical events involving the King of England, the Russian army and the Emperor Napoleon. Ballet dancers will bring the Old American West to life in music from Rodeo. Opera singers will perform a joyful quartet that might be heard on New Year's Eve. The jazz sounds of Louis Armstrong will take us on a trip to New Orleans to celebrate Mardi Gras. Students will recognize the sounds of Elgar's processional heard at graduation ceremonies, and will be invited to "conduct" the orchestra from their seats. The audience will sing with the orchestra in Spanish and English on the traditional Mexican birthday greeting song. Music by John Williams will bring a modern twist to a traditional melody, and feature the four instrument families of the orchestra. Music teachers will receive a packet of materials that includes a CD, information about the music and composers, classroom activities, visual aids and more. Get ready to listen, learn and come join the orchestra for a very MUSICAL celebration!
